

WWW.EUGRIS.INFO

The EUGRIS portal is a web based user-friendly information platform for contaminated land and groundwater information. EUGRIS offers technical content and overviews of policy and regulations, management schemes, research funding, research projects and their outputs and library & links on a European and national level. This flyer gives you an overview of the main sections of the site.

Welcome to EUGRIS

Welcome to the EUGRIS: the European Groundwater and Contaminated Land Information System. EUGRIS provides research project information, technical information and information from the EC and its Member States. It also provides a news service directory of contacts in the field, and an opportunity for you to post your own information. You can see links to all of the major features in the menu above. You can read EUGRIS like an on-line book or you can use its advanced search functions to access specific information.

Is this the first time that you have used EUGRIS?
Do you want to see what's new on EUGRIS?
Do you want to search EUGRIS?
Do you want to know more about the EUGRIS team and project?

Use of the web site is subject to terms and conditions. By navigating the web site you signal your acceptance of these terms and conditions. No personal information is displayed until it has been activated, and users can choose not to make their contact details known on the web site. See our Privacy Policy.

ADD INFORMATION

Registered users can submit information in all parts of the gateway simply using a web browser. For example, news, courses and conferences, library resources, who does what entries, project and funding information can be directly submitted online in minutes. The modular structure allows a quick integration of further technical content and new country pages. If you are interested, please contact us.

European Groundwater and Contaminated Land Remediation Information System

System Overview

Funded by the European Commission
EVK1-CT-2002-80021

CONTENT

The CONTENT pages provide an overview of key topics of land and water management, along with links to additional resources such as web links, projects and documents. For each topic we offer some overview information and a brief further description, written by leading experts in Europe. The further descriptions serving an education purpose, whereas the additional resources could be also of interest for experts.

COUNTRY PAGES

The COUNTRY PAGES are the central entry point for all country information in EUGRIS. They offer a comprehensive listing of general and more detailed information in the field of soil and water in Europe. Here you will find links to the latest national policies, guidance and research as well as country libraries and links to organisations active in the field of environmental data & protection. So far EUGRIS has country pages for six countries and the European Union. We invite other countries to join EUGRIS.
